

Charilaos Mertzanis is currently Associate Professor of Finance at the American University in Cairo and Abraaj Group Chair of Private Equity. Previously, he served as the Director of Research and Market Regulation in the Hellenic Capital Market Commission for over fifteen years. He was educated at the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki and the New School for Social Research, where he received a Ph.D in economics and finance. He has worked on all aspects of capital market regulation and corporate governance. He is a member of the ESMA Committee on Economic Analysis and of the OECD Corporate Governance Committee and served as the Coordinator of the first Committee of Corporate Governance in Greece. He has taught economics and finance courses at US and Hellenic Universities and published scholarly articles on macroeconomics, finance and corporate governance, financial regulation and financial stability. He has also been engaged in the provision of advising services on capital market development (regulation, supervision and enforcement, corporate governance) under EU, OECD and World Bank technical assistance projects to many emerging market governments and private institutions in the Middle-East, Eastern Europe and Central Asia.